The chair of the House Intelligence Committee says the FBI and Department of Justice of stonewalling investigation into claims the Trump campaign colluded with Russia with the hope of running clock until the November elections, when the Democrats will regain control of the House and an ongoing probe that has uncovered evidence officials sought to cripple Trump's campaign.

Rep. Devin Nunes (R., Calif.), in a wide-ranging interview with his House colleague Rep. Sean Duffy (Wis.), accused top officials at the FBI and DOJ of "putting all their chips on the Republicans losing the House" so that their Democratic allies can "stop the longstanding Intelligence Committee probe, which has unearthed information disputing claims of collusion in recent months.

Rep. Duffy interviewed Rep. Nunes for an upcoming episode of Duffy's podcast, "Plaidcast."

Nunes also lashed out at the U.S. media, accusing "90 percent" of reporters covering the Russia probe are "essentially an arm of the Democratic party," according to an advance copy of the interview shared with the Washington Free Beacon.

Nunes has been running the Intelligence Committee's investigation into claims the Trump campaign colluded with Russia to cement the 2016 election. The committee has unearthed a body of evidence indicating top officials at the FBI and DOJ worked to take down Trump on behalf of Democratic challenger Hillary Clinton.

"One-hundred percent, they [the FBI and DOJ] are putting all their chips on the Republicans losing the election and all these investigations will shut down," Nunes told Duffy.

Nunes went on to blast the media for its lack of coverage about Republican findings indicating that some top officials loyal to the Democratic Party actively worked to open intelligence investigations into the Trump campaign based on a faulty and salacious anti-Trump dossier.

"The media has been horrible on this whole situation," Nunes said. "What we've seen since the election of President Trump has been what's been going on for a long time, but now you see what I call the 90-
