

Amazon, Google And Facebook Pay Bribes To Politicians Via Shell Game

Sat, 03 Jun 2023 16:57:05, swnof88, [post_tag: amazon, post_tag: google-and-facebook-pay-bribes-to-politicians-via-shell-game, category: news]

Amazon and Google fund anti-abortion lawmakers through complex shell game

Blue-chip companies gave to Republican group funneling money to lawmakers who overturned abortion-ban veto in North Carolina

As North Carolina's 12-week abortion ban is due to come into effect on 1 July, an analysis from the non-profit Center for Political Accountability (CPA) shows several major corporations donated large sums to a Republican political organization which in turn funded groups working to elect anti-abortion state legislators.

The Republican State Leadership Committee (RSLC) received donations of tens of thousands of dollars each from corporations including Comcast, Intel, Wells Fargo, Amazon, Bank of America and Google last year, the CPA's analysis of IRS filings shows. The contributions were made in the months after Politico published a leaked supreme court decision indicating that the court would end the right to nationwide abortion access.

North Carolina bans abortion at 12 weeks, overriding Democratic governor's veto

Read more

Google contributed $45,000 to the RSLC after the leak of the draft decision, according to the CPA's review of the tax filings. Others contributed even more in the months after the leak, including Amazon ($50,000), Intuit ($100,000) and Comcast ($147,000).

Google, Amazon, Comcast, Wells Fargo and Bank of America did not respond to requests for comment. An Intuit spokesperson pointed out that the company also donates to Democratic political organizations, and that "our financial support does not indicate a full endorsement of every position taken by an individual policymaker or organization."

"Intuit is non-partisan and works with policymakers and leaders from both sides of the aisle to advocate for our customers," an Intuit spokesperson said in a statement. "We believe engagement with policymakers is essential to a robust democracy and political giving is just one of the many ways Intuit engages on behalf of its customers, employees, and the communities it serves."

A Bank of America spokesperson pointed to the company's policy that donations to so-called 527 organizations such as the RSLC come with the caveat that they only be used for operational and administrative purposes, not to support any candidates or ballot initiatives. The CPA, meanwhile, argues that since the RSLC's operations are explicitly designed to support candidates and ballot initiatives, such a policy is a distinction without a difference.

Although these companies did not directly give these vast sums to North Carolina's anti-abortion lawmakers, the CPA's analysis is a case study in how corporate contributions to organizations such as the RSLC can end up being funneled into anti-abortion causes. When Republican state legislators successfully overturned a veto from the Democratic governor last month to pass the upcoming abortion ban, nine of lawmakers voting to overturn the veto had received campaign contributions from a group with links to the RSLC.

The RSLC, which works to elect Republican lawmakers and promote rightwing policies at the state level, is at the top of a chain of spending and donations which eventually connected to rightwing candidates in North Carolina. This type of spending, which relies on channeling money through various third-party groups from larger organizations, is a common part of modern political campaign financing.

In this case, the RSLC gave $5m to the Good Government Coalition political organization between June and November last year, which in turn gave $6.45m to the rightwing political group Citizens for a Better North Carolina. Finally, that organization gave $1m in independent expenditures to support nine anti-abortion state lawmakers who later voted to overturn the governor's veto of the abortion bill.

These donations are evidence that corporations are proving to be complicit in the broader movement to limit abortion rights, the CPA non-profit argues, even as many of these companies publicly tout women's empowerment and employee access to healthcare.

"Companies need to know where their money is ending up," said Bruce Freed, the president of the CPA. "This should be a lesson – a lesson that they should have taken a while ago but that frankly is driven home right now with what has been happening in North Carolina."

Several of the companies, including Intuit and Bank of America, made statements last year offering to cover healthcare costs for employees who needed to travel out of state for medical procedures, in some cases explicitly mentioning abortion as an example. Google sent an email to employees acknowledging that Roe v Wade had been overturned and informed them about options for relocating to Google offices in different states.

"Equity is extraordinarily important to us as a company, and we share concerns about the impact this ruling will have on people's health, lives and careers," the email stated.

The companies which donated to the RSLC are also large donors to Democratic political groups, and tech giants such as Google and Amazon tend to spend millions each year more broadly on lobbying efforts.

The RSLC, whose board members include former lawmakers, governors and White House advisers such as Karl Rove, boasts on its website that it spent more than $45m on supporting Republican candidates during the 2021 and 2022 election cycle.

In addition to North Carolina's abortion ban, South Carolina also passed a bill last week that would criminalize most abortions at six weeks into a pregnancy – generally a period before people know they are pregnant. A state judge issued a temporary halt on the ban within hours of Governor Henry McMaster signing it into law, and it will now be reviewed by the state supreme court.

North Carolina's 12-week abortion ban is scheduled to go into effect on 1 July, drastically curtailing abortion access as many other southern states have passed near total bans.

1.

<https://www.politico.com/magazine/story/2015/08/how-google-could-rig-the-2016-election-121548>

How Google Could Rig the 2016 Election - POLITICO Magazine

Aug 19, 2015Google's search algorithm can easily shift the voting preferences of undecided voters by 20 percent or more—up to 80 percent in some demographic groups—with virtually no one knowing they are...

2.

<https://www.brookings.edu/blog/fixgov/2017/11/30/how-to-rig-an-election>

How to rig an election in three not-so-easy steps

The first and most straightforward way to "rig" an election is to arrange to steal votes. There is a long and storied history of vote stealing in American elections. In most states voter...

3.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PpZUMwumTQ>

The Larry Alex Taunton Show #29 - How Google Rigs Elections

Larry and Amie Beth have a very interesting conversation with Behavioral & technology researcher Dr. Robert Epstein explains Google's use of "ephemeral exper..."

4.

<https://www.nbcnews.com/politics/elections/online-vulnerable-experts-find-nearly-three-dozen-u-s-voting-r1112436>

'Online and vulnerable': Experts find nearly three dozen U.S. voting ...

That team of election security experts say that last summer, they discovered some systems are, in fact, online. "We found over 35 [voting systems] had been left online and we're still ...

5.

<https://www.politico.eu/article/google-2016-election-us-candidates-search>

How Google could rig the 2016 election - POLITICO

Google's search algorithm can easily shift the voting preferences of undecided voters by 20 percent or more—up to 80 percent in some demographic groups—with virtually no one knowing they are being manipulated, according to experiments I conducted recently with Ronald E. Robertson.

6.

<https://money.cnn.com/2015/08/20/technology/google-2016-election/index.html>

Google could 'rig the 2016 election,' researcher says

Aug 20, 2015The world's most-used search engine is so powerful and national elections are so tight, that even a tiny tweak in Google's (GOOGL) secret algorithm could swing the 2016 presidential...

7.

<https://www.electiondefense.org/how-to-rig-an-election>

How to Rig an Election — National Election Defense Coalition

How to Rig An Election Victoria Collier Harper's Magazine, November 2012 * Old-school election fraud was limited in scope, but new electronic voting systems allow insiders to rig elections on a national scale. DOWNLOAD THE STORY Introduction

8.

<https://theconversation.com/how-autocrats-rig-elections-to-stay-in-power-and-get-away-with-it-95337>

How autocrats rig elections to stay in power - and get away with it

But what we show in our new book, How to Rig an Election, is much more startling. Elections aren't just failing to remove unpopular autocrats from power; they can actually make it easier for ...

9.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IZVXOLn\_g3I

How to Rig the US Presidential Elections - The Google Way

How Google has stated that it will be changing its algorithm to change the public opinion on the 2020 US Presidential elections and favor candidate Elizabeth...

10.

<https://larryalextaunton.com/2022/11/larry-taunton-takes-a-historical-and-analytical-look-at-the-blatant-hypocrisy-of-the-press>

The Larry Alex Taunton Show #29 - How Google Rigs Elections - YouTube

Nov 22, 2022 The Larry Alex Taunton Show #29 - How Google Rigs Elections - YouTube Published by larry on November 22, 2022 November 22, 2022 Larry and Amie Beth have a very interesting conversation with Behavioral & technology researcher Dr. Robert Epstein explains Google's use of "ephemeral experiences"

11.

Google is ordered to sell off parts of its lucrative digital ad business that is worth a total \$224.5 billion as Europe's anti-trust watchdog says it is the only way to address anti-competitive practices

The 27-nation EU has led the global movement to crack down on Big Tech companies but it has previously relied on issuing blockbuster fines, but has now told Google to divest its ad business