Now Google Rapes You Even Harder With Googl Cookies

SHARE Facebook Twitter

Google Chrome Inline Installation Disable

Image: Isaac Bowen/Flickr

et another privacy concern for Google Chrome users!
Previously, we talked about Google's auto-login mechanism which is hijacking our local Google Chrome data. Now, another Chrome 69 setting has come to light which is risking our freedom to remove data.

Spotted by Jan Wildeboer, now Chrome won't remove cookies and other site data of its own services in the "Clearing browsing data" prompt. In other words, data saved by Google services like Gmail, Google homepage, YouTube won't get affected in the process of clearing browsing data from Google Chrome.