CBI members have fully, and effectively, terminated: Revenge Porn Sites, Multi-Billion Dollar Corrupt Corporations, Attack Tabloids, Corrupt Senators, Corrupt Mayors, Embezzling Administrators, Fraudulent Charities, and others involved in the criminal abuse of the public. CBI cases have led to federal audits, indictments and jail time.

The Usual Process for Taking Down The Usual Suspects:

Companies, and organizations, do evil things and break the law because their investors tell them to do crimes out of sheer greed and lack of a moral compass.

Most companies are not evil. The ones that are evil can be more easily terminated.

You take out an evil entity by taking out it's investors, it's "brand name value" and the will of the people that it hires to break the law.

In a typical federal take-down, first, all of the investors are put on a list.

Then all of the assets and investments of those investors are put on a list.

Then all of the assets and investments of those investors are investigated for violations of the law or public morality. When discovered, those violations are prosecuted and the moral violations are publicly disclosed on the internet.

In an evil company, executives are often buying prostitutes, cheating with secretaries, paying staff to buy drugs for them and cheating on taxes. These illegal purchases can be easily monitored by tracking their PayPal account, credit cards and debit cards.

When confronted with the total loss of all income, assets, credibility and public image, 75% of the executives will "roll over" on, or expose, the other 25% of the corrupt executives.

Easy Peasy. Done. Now, you as a member of the public, can do all of these same kinds of investigations using databases like Axciom and their off-shoots. If you work with a regional federal agent and a few reporters, they will do much of the database work for you as long as you do the "grunt work".

Then there are the creative ways to take down the "bad guys". Let's examine some:
