

It Only Takes 50 People To Run Twitter But 7000 People To Run The Propaganda Narrative At Twitter

Mon, 18 Jul 2022 22:12:59, admin45789, [post_tag: elon-musk-vows-to-fire-all-of-the-assholes-at-twitter, category: news]

ELON MUSK VOWS TO FIRE ALL OF THE ASSHOLES AT TWITTER

'When you realize you're the 75 percent...': Twitter employees seethe following Elon Musk's vow to fire 3/4 of the company's workforce - after the billionaire admitted he is 'paying too much' in $44billion deal

- Elon Musk told prospective investors in his $44 billion deal to buy Twitter that he plans to get rid of three-quarters of its 7,500 workers
- That would leave the company with just a skeleton crew of just over 2,000 employees, which experts say is not enough to tamp down on misinformation
- Current management had already been planning to layoff a quarter of its employees after spending $1.5 billion on personnel last year
- Musk has previously said that he spent too much to buy the company

At least when they were all in one place, you knew to avoid it. They will be spread out now. No doubt there are talks of starting their own social media companies. Musk is right; that share price was extremely inflated. I used Twitter for one month and it was obvious there is an issue with bots and a large number of inactive/multiple accounts. Twitter is a much smaller community than people realize.

As for free speech, here it is in a nutshell, red hats: The First Amendment ONLY prevents GOVERNMENT restrictions on speech. It DOES NOT prevent restrictions on speech imposed by private individuals or businesses. Facebook, Twitter and other social media can regulate or restrict speech hosted on their platforms because they are PRIVATE entities.

Click to rate

Ty Breaker, Middle America, United States, 22 minutes ago

Not exactly. A phone company cannot restrict your speech on a phone call even though it is a private company. Zoom cannot tell you what you can say in your zoom meeting even though it is a private company. A restaurant cannot say, for instance, that people with red hair cannot eat there, even though it is privately owned. Not so simple.

LOL while TSLA is tanking. I said it would drop below $600 and now we are nearly at $200. This guy ----- everyone around him. His luck has run out. This claim to buy Twitter was a dumb move. He was publically airing the deal, signed a contract and then texts show he was already developing some scheme to back out of it and then came up with the bot issue. It would have been cheaper for him to develop his own platform and try to grow it from there but greed got the best of him. Why not just buy a platform with billions of users already. They would have no choice. Well, now he has no choice. He likely signed an iron clad agreement and he knows there is no way out of it. What a moron.
