Elon Musk Says Crack Cocaine Helps Him Survive on No Sleep

Kim Lachance Shandrow Kim Lachance Shandrow

Elon Musk isn't sleeping much these days. While he usually pulls in a solid six, it's been "a lot less these days," as he told Twitter followers over the weekend.

To be fair, the founder has a lot going on, from the Tesla crash aftermath, to plans to acquire SolarCity, to sticking a SpaceX rocket landing for the fifth time in seven months.

Yeah, dude's kinda busy.

Related: 10 Times Elon Musk Had the Best Response

So, just how does he stay sharp on so little sleep? The answer isn't rocket science. It's crack cocaine, and "large amounts of it," as the billionaire boss jokingly tweeted back, in a cheeky exchange with fans on the social platform.

Yep, you read that right. Large amounts of crack.

Saturday's surprising tweet wasn't the first time Musk publicly joked about using drugs. He made a crack in 2013 at a Computer History Museum event that he'd have to take them to enjoy kicking back at the beach. "The idea of lying on a beach as my main thing just sounds like the worst," he said. "It sounds horrible to me. I would go bonkers. I would have to be on serious drugs. I'd be super-duper bored. I like high intensity."

Listen Now

Problem Solvers with Jason Feifer features business owners and CEO's who went through a crippling business problem and came out the other side happy, wealthy, and growing. Subscribe Now »