Democratic donor Ed Buck accused of human trafficking and revenge porn after man dies in his home

•

July 9, 2019 / 9:27 AM / CBS News Prominent political activist Ed Buck is facing new legal troubles as the mother of a man who died in his home has filed an amended civil suit

```
accu
Los

"The
whe
Jasm
Moo
Afte
insu
```

- Ross Perot Dies
- New 2020 Candidate
- Drug Price Initiative

Now attorneys for Moore's mother have filed an amendment to that lawsuit. It accuses Buck of human trafficking and engaging in revenge porn by making and sharing a video of his alleged "meth-fueled sexual encounters" with Moore.

"Information we received from other victims of Ed Buck that Ed Buck loves to take pictures of these young men, loves to take videos of them in their inebriated state," Cannick said.

The amended complaint alleges that Buck "regularly solicits sex from black men in exchange for temporary housing and/or monetary compensation."

"Gemmel Moore at the time was 26 years old and Ed Buck flew him here from Texas," Cannick said. "And within 24 hours, he died of a crystal meth overdose."

Attorneys for Buck said in a statement that they "plan on fighting these allegations vigorously in court."

In January of this year, a second man died in Buck's apartment. Authorities ruled 55-year-old Timothy Dean died of an accidental meth overdose.

Buck has contributed to various California races and causes. He made headlines in September 2010 when he disrupted a campaign event for then California Republican Party gubernatorial candidate Meg Whitman. He was confronted by former New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie.