

White people being beaten up in San Francisco hate crimes against Google and Facebook yuppies

By Sarah Ravani

100

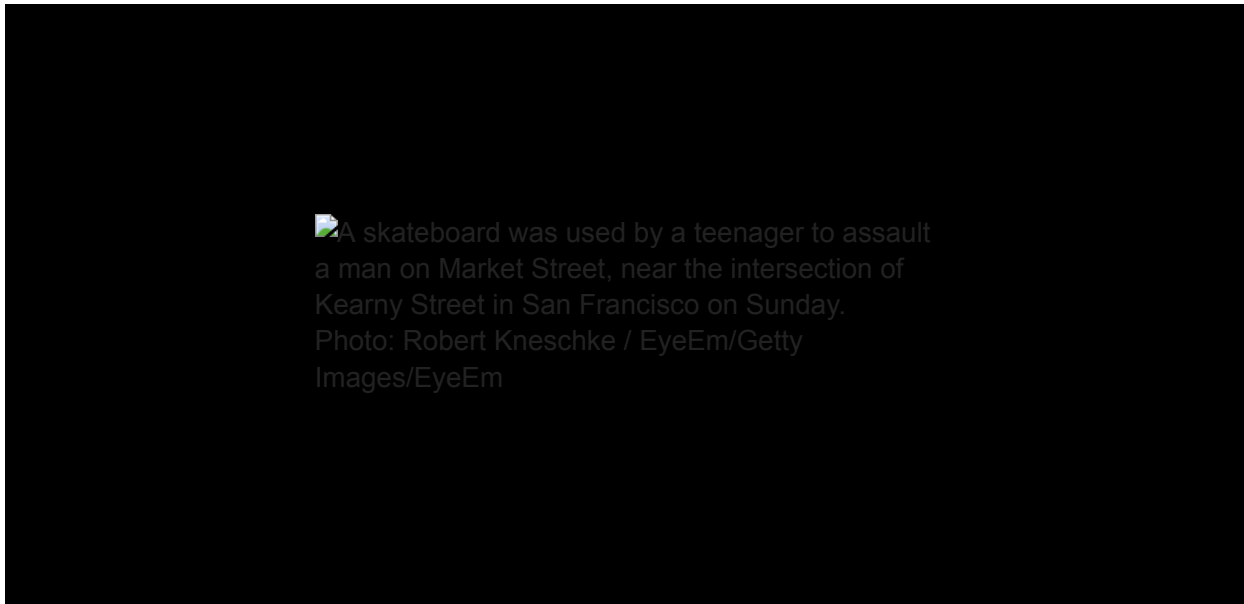

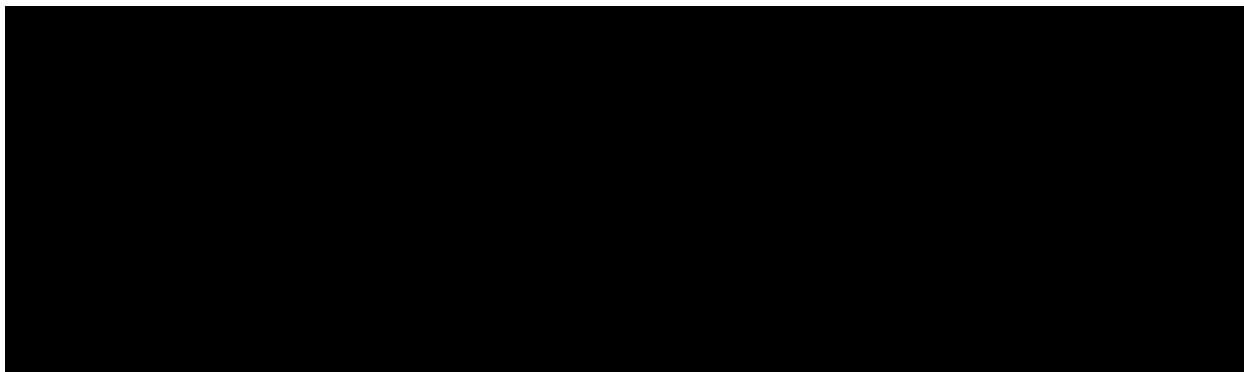

Photo: Robert Kneschke / EyeEm/Getty Images/EyeEm

IMAGE 1 OF 17

A skateboard was used by a teenager to assault a man on Market Street, near the intersection of Kearny Street in San Francisco on Sunday.

Authorities on Monday were investigating a hate crime against a white man in San Francisco after a teenager allegedly beat him with a skateboard and made racial statements.

The incident occurred about 2:30 p.m. Sunday on the 700 block of Market Street, near the intersection of Kearny Street, according to the San Francisco Police Department.

More Videos

Close

00:0000:51

Complete 2017 numbers for violent offenses and property crime in San Francisco.

Media: Ted Andersen, SFGATE

MORE BAY AREA NEWS

Mission District leaves pedestrian with life-threatening injuries

A man, between the age of 17 and 19, struck a 22-year-old white man with a skateboard and made racist comments toward the victim, police said.

Authorities identified the assailant as Latino, but the suspect fled the scene before officers arrived.

No arrests were made.

The victim was transported to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

Blacks Represent the Vast Majority of Those Banned From Riding San Francisco BART, Though BART Officials Withhold Surveillance Videos Of Crime To Avoid "Stereotypes"

(stuffblackpeopledontlike.blogspot.com)

by InjusticeLeague to news (+169|-0)

comments

Two-thirds of people banned from BART are black - and agency isn't asking why

(sfchronicle.com)

submitted 2.5 hours ago

comments