

Dead Men Tell No Tales in Broward County: 3 Whistleblowers Who Ended Up DEAD

By

Dean Garrison

-

Controversies arise regularly in Debbie Wasserman Schultz's 23rd district and those who seek justice sometimes meet an untimely demise.

Dead Men Tell No Tales in Broward County: 3 Whistleblowers Who Ended Up DEAD

Below are the stories of 3 men who dared challenge the establishment and soon after paid with their lives.

Beranton J. Whisenant Jr

Whisenant was a federal prosecutor that was murdered in 2017 while investigating voter fraud. Biz Pac Review reported:

A federal prosecutor from the U.S. attorney's office in Miami who happened to be investigating voter fraud has been found dead along a Hollywood Florida beach, and it's being investigated as a homicide.

According to Hollywood police spokeswoman Miranda Grossman, although the "investigation is still very preliminary," 37-year-old Beranton J. Whisenant Jr. likely suffered a head wound from a gunshot or other direct trauma. His body was found by a passerby washed up on the Hollywood beach shore south of Magnolia Terrace. It isn't clear where the victim actually died.

For now, the FBI's Miami office is referring all questions related to Whisenant's death to Hollywood police, but if the death is found to be retaliatory or related to a case Whisenant was working on, standard procedure would mean the FBI and U.S. attorney's office aggressively working together on the case.

News spread quickly on social media that Whisenant was involved in a recent fraud probe involving the DNC, though none of the news reports mentioned that as fact.

A graduate of the University of Florida law school, Whisenant has been a member of the Florida Bar since 2004, joining the U.S. attorney's office in January 2017 in the major crimes section.

His office happens to be in Congressman Debbie Wasserman Schultz's district.

Broward County Deputy Jason Fitzsimons

Deputy Jason Fitzsimons was the first of two Broward County Deputies to question the politicizing of the Parkland shooting by Democrats. Both ended up dead, under intriguing and suspicious circumstances. Sunshine State News covered the story in April of this year:

Broward County Deputy Marshall Peterson

Another member of the Broward County Sheriff's Department, also believed to be in excellent health was found dead about 3 weeks later at his Mother's house. Newspunch has the story:

Let us not forget that Debbie Wasserman Schultz is not afraid to threaten law enforcement. She can be seen in this 2017 video threatening a police chief.

I'm not saying that Debbie Wasserman Schultz is behind any of this, but would it surprise you if she were?

The woman had the audacity to threaten a chief of police.

One thing is for certain.

Opening your mouth in Debbie Wasserman Schultz's district has been proven to be quite hazardous to one's health.