Silicon Valley's creepy tech lawyers: Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati hacked?

Palo Alto- Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati are known for being the "go-to" guys when your offshore tax haven gets raided, your bank records are found in a Senator's Swiss account or your electric car company is sued for fraud and corruption.

Wilson Sonsini has a hoard of sketchy clients who seem to always be involved in some scandal, political intrigue or overt crimes against the public.

While one might have thought that Wilson Sonsini was only one FBI raid away from non-existence, the FBI did raid Wilson Sonsini's covert buddy: Solyndra, and still has not released the final investigation results.

Wouldn't it be handy for the FBI if they had all of the information off of all of the hard drives from Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati from the last decade?

The wishes of the FBI, and other investigators may have come true.

The troubled larcenies of Tesla Motors, another WSGR politically financed tech company, are coming to light.

It appears that either the FBI, Russia, China, Guccifer, or some other hacker extraordinaire may have gutted the secrets of WSGR. If a disgruntled employee did not do a dump then maybe WSGR's client: Juniper Networks (Known for having put spy back-doors in all of their network equipment), provided the access by simply being Juniper Networks. The terrible manner in which Juniper Networks implemented their back-doors makes any hacks that go through them UNDETECTABLE!

An unusual amount of insider Panama Papers-like material has started to appear on the internet and it is not pretty for Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati.
